ABOUT OUR CLUBS.

What we wish to speak of in the present article is "Whether Social Clubs under the existing circumstangular of the race." The writer is conversant with members of nearly conver motive for which the clubs are organized are unquestionably harmful in its effects not only upon the individual members composing the clubs but hurtful and damaging to the race as well. We wish that every member of a social club would read these lines, and ask him or herself the question with the clubs are organized are unquestionably harmful in its effects not only upon the individual members composing the clubs but hurtful and damaging to the race as well. We wish that every member of a social club would read these lines, and ask him or herself the question.

The crowd quickly took him back of naval militia, escorted the remains of have aforesaid to see whether these clubs are helpful to us as a race under the existing circumstances. For ourselves, we say They are harmful why? Because in the face of the glaring fact that we are as a mass dependent upon other races for a livelishood, for clothing and other necessities of ilice and mental exercise, 2 ounces better hours, ½ grain of energy and 2 way yeluable money in giving sostly outlays; to recklessly throw away money of the fact that dress but once. Can want to do do.

The prospects for a large attendance at the Demo-cratic state convention here on the 1th of August next are very good. Hotely and boarding house keepers are received and boarding house heads and the clitzens committee to look after a commendations for the received and boarding house keepers are received and boarding house keepers are received and boarding house keepers are received and board in the total and the received and we afford such extravagance in the clubs. face of the fact that we are unable to support a race journal? Can we afford it when our brothers and sisters honorary member of the J. C. Price ford it when our brothers and sisters around us are starving, growing up in ignorance where a spelling book would perhaps change the destiny of a nation? Can we afford such, when the majority of the members of these clubs are ignorant and poor themselves, and who carry on an intelligent conversation. They are strangers to the current doings of to-day, and yet can spend their money like fools for some one else's enjoyment and are too ome one else's enjoyment and are too stingy to buy books.

What benefit are these clubs to So ciety? Some make a pretence of diseriminating Letween the good and bad in their membership, while in others there seem to be a pure and moral at mos, nere, but all adopt the same harmon method of having their good time. In certain clubs we notice individuals males and females who are fineviduals males and females who are frequenters of disreputable places and whose actions do not bear investiga-tion and still are the most exalted members of the clubs.

It has been frequently said that we have no society, and if as some under-stand it these clubs are arms of our society or are representatives of our best society and seek by such extrava-gance and lack of intellectual, financial and moral fitness to set themselves up as auxiliaries and representatives. We enter our solemn protest.

become a nation, says Capponi and issuing the pardon says Dinning should without these essentials we cannot be have been commended for defending a nation; therefore it behooves us to his home instead of being published as lay down the vain, hypocritical and delusive desire for pleasure and get those essential qualities that will set our race in the luminous and resplen-dant diadem of the foremost and grandest nations of the world. We should have a higher and nobler aim in life than pursuing the useless bauble of a temporary pleasure. We would say more but space forbids.
